

BEING AN ENTITLED CITIZEN VULNERABILITY AND EMPOWERMENT
Christine Delory-Momberger & Bernard Friot (eds.)

Contents

editorial

Christine Delory-Momberger

topical paper

Gérard Gromer

A tomb for Turgot

debate

Michel Autès, Marie-Laure Dufresne-Castets

Work, a place for rights and democracy?

special topic

Christine Delory-Momberger, Bernard Friot

Being an entitled citizen. Vulnerability and empowerment

Liora Israël

What means having rights ? Mobilizing law in a sociological perspective

Héloïse Nez

Claiming a right to speak. The uses of legal resource in citizens' mobilizations

Dalmo de Abreu Dallari

Citizenship and participation rights

Etienne Balibar

Interviewed by Christine Delory-Momberger, Valérie Melin

« Citizen law » and citizenship in the European and the globalization context

Claude Didry

The right for work citizenship, a different story of the wage system

Bernard Friot

He founding law of economical democracy

Philippe Sopena

Healthcare access for all: not to be taken for granted crossings

Christine Bouteiller

Interviewed by Thierry Tartas

The silence of the lost people

Emilia Largillière
News in brief

Laurent Camut
Interviewed by Christine Delory-Momberger « Those afraid of ghosts are not familiar with the night » monitoring

Catherine Tourette-Turgis, Joris Thievenaz Recognizing the personal empowerment of vulnerable subjects: A crucial issue in the field of social sciences

resistances

Axiom
Interviewed by Christine Delory-Momberger
“I will not give up fighting!”

Pascal Ourghoulian
Desolation

on biographical research

Christine Delory-Momberger
Meaning and narrativity in a biographical society early career contributions

Clara Lecadet
Law, politics and the deported : Malian scenes papers submitted to the journal

Martin Düspohl, Suzanne Kitschun
The graveyard of Mars's victims in Berlin: a place of memory for the foundation of democracy

Bruno Daniel Filho, Marilena Nakano & Guillaume Six Everyday immigrants' lives: empowerment and the right of citizenship books reviews

received books and journals

Translation in English: Letitia Trifanescu Photographs: Lina Lario
Photo printing: Sam Noble Atelier Publimod Paris